MEDICINE IS A DRIVE
PRODUCED BY ANXIETY
DIRECTED THROUGH CHALLENGE

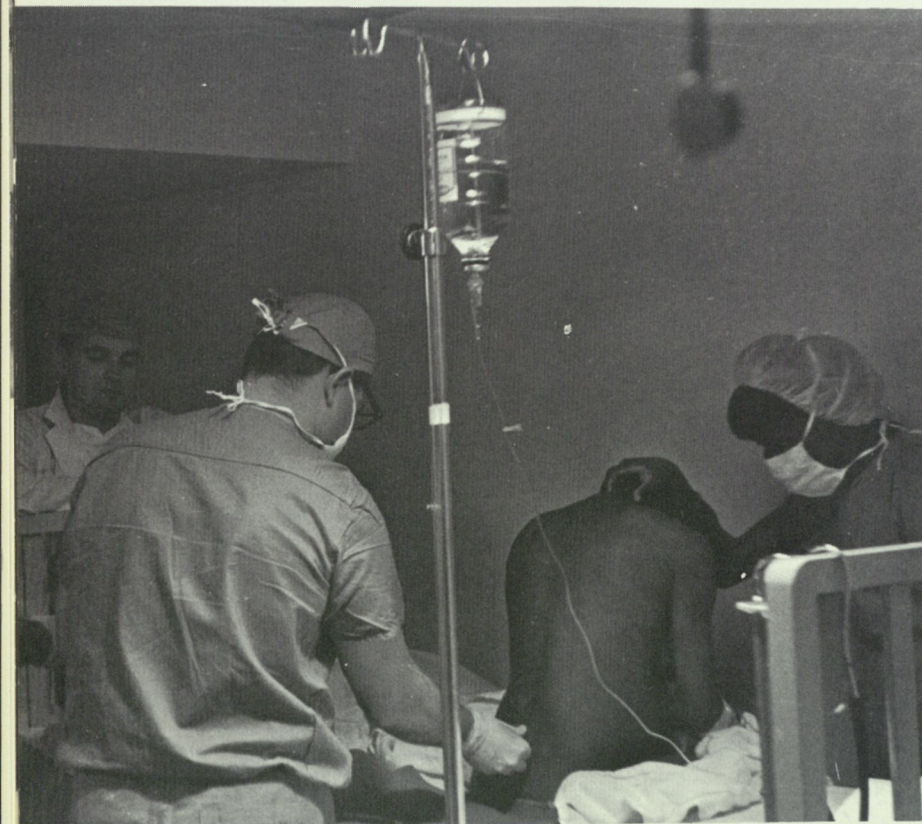

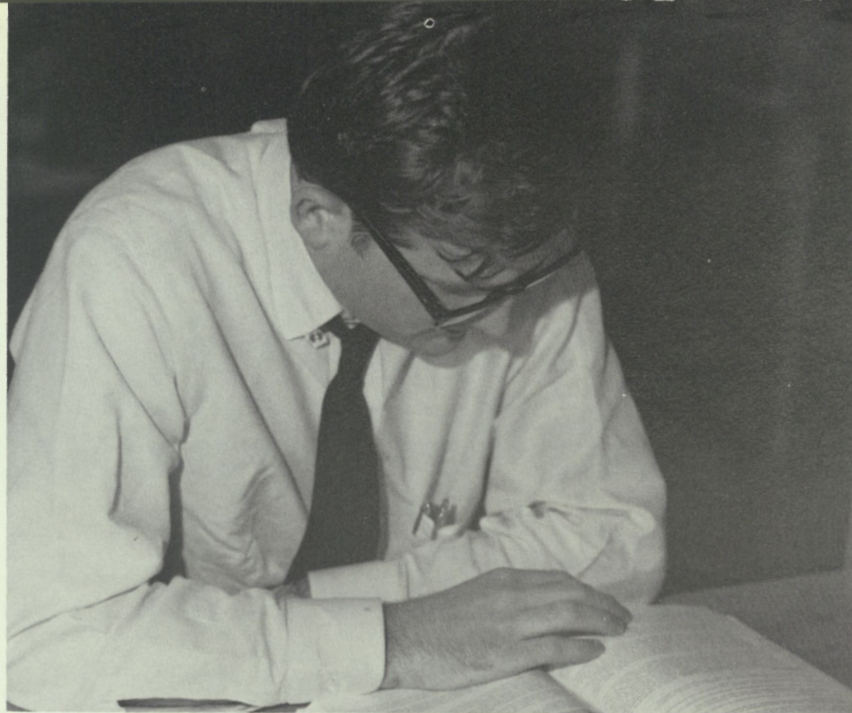

MEDICINE is an art firmly grounded on a foundation of basic science—yet it is not dogmatic. To those who engage in the art, textbooks are invaluable, yet they fail to convey that human element so carefully nurtured and presented to each new generation of practitioners by means of instruction, counseling, active participation, but above all — by example.

MEDICINE IS A PAINFUL, CONTINUAL

OATH OF HIPPOCRATES

"I swear by Apollo the physician, by Aesculapius, Hygeia, and Panacea, and I take witness to all the gods, all the goddesses, to keep according to my ability and my judgment the following Oath.

"To consider dear to me as my parents him who taught me this art; to live in common with him and if necessary to share my goods with him; to look upon his children as my own brothers, to teach them this art if they so desire without fee or written promise; to impart to my sons and the sons of the master who taught me and the disciples who have enrolled themselves and have agreed to the rules of the profession, but to these alone, the precepts and the instruction. I will prescribe regimen for the good of my patients according to my ability and my judgment and never do harm to anyone. To please no one will I prescribe a deadly drug, nor give advice which may cause his death. Nor will I give a woman a pessary to procure abortion. But I will preserve the purity of my life and my art. I will not cut for stone, even for patients in whom the disease is manifest; I will leave this operation to be performed by specialists in this art. In every house where I come I will enter only for the good of my patients, keeping myself far from all intentional ill-doing and all seduction, and especially from the pleasures of love with women or with men, be they free or slaves. All that may come to my knowledge in the exercise of my profession or in daily commerce with men, which ought not to be spread abroad, I will keep secret and never reveal. If I keep this oath faithfully, may I enjoy my life and practice my art, respected by all men and in all times; but if I swerve from it or violate it, may the reverse be my lot."

The First State Capitol as a Medical School Building between the first and second school building.

The beginnings of Medicine in Arkansas are lost in the mists of the past. The early records reveal physicians and surgeons coming here from medical schools in the East and abroad. The first faculty roster of the University at Fayetteville lists a Richard Thurston, M.D., of Van Buren, who was paid $480 for teaching. It was to be a long time before other physicians were paid for their contributions to the University. By 1870, however, there was a sufficient number of physicians with active interest, who constituted themselves as the Arkansas Medical Society. This Society engaged in both scientific and political activity for the improvement and regulation of health, medical care, and medical practice. This body became the true father of the Medical Center, and there were frequent exchanges between the Board of Trustees of the University and the Officers of the Medical Society concerning the establishment of a Medical Department.

The fact that the University was permanently located in Fayetteville, away from the cultured business, legislative, and more important medical center of the state posed problems to both parties. The lack of clinical material for medical instruction in Fayetteville and the indifference of the Board of the University led the Medical Society to explore the establishment of a Medical Department of St. Johns College here in Little Rock. Nothing came of this, however.

Eventually, in 1879, with the support of and for the Medical Society, certain physicians of Little Rock under the leadership of Dr. Hooper formed a stock company and inaugurated a medical school for the state. The University accepted this institution as the Medical Department of the University, granting degrees to the graduates, but stipulated that it would assume no financial responsibility for its support. It was 65 years before this fiscal irresponsibility was reversed. Support was solely by the physicians of Little Rock, by the city, which made available the facilities of the city hospitals, by student fees, and by the State Medical Society. Recognition by the Association of American Medical Colleges was attained in 1890, in which year the curriculum was extended to four years of six months each, and there were 83 students with 17 graduating.

In 1906 a second medical school, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, was established. This institution likewise was self-supporting and while it struggled little was added to medicine in Arkansas.

At the 1909 meeting of the Arkansas State Medical Society, a committee was appointed with Doctor Young of Springdale its Chairman, with three objectives. First, to persuade the two faculties of medicine to merge, to combine their acquired properties and equipment and to deed them to the State. Second, to persuade the General Assembly to accept these properties, making the combined school a part of the University and providing for its support. Third, to induce the State to build and maintain a Charity Hospital in connection with and under the control of the University School of Medicine.

The first two of these objectives was accomplished by 1911, but it required nearly 50 years for the third, the Hospital. In accepting this gift, the Legislature—not the University—pledged the “faith and credit of the State to forever maintain and operate a first class medical school as a part of the University, with the course of study, methods of instruction and equipment of standards equivalent to that required of Medical Colleges by the Association of American Colleges.” However, the Legislature adjourned without appropriating any funds for such a purpose. As the legislature prepared to move to the New Capitol in 1913, it passed a resolution making available the 75 year old State Capitol Building for use of the Medical School, and in the same year Dean Smith, a graduate of the University, presented a budget of $50,000. According to the Gazette: “A huge laugh went up from the solons when that request was presented, who regarded the maintenance of a medical school as the wildest extravagance.” However, the Legislature appropriated $36,000.

There were further appropriations by the Legislature to the Medical Department directly. It was not until 1945 that the appropriation for the University included money for the school of Medicine. Because of the financial and other stringencies, the school lost its accreditation and reverted to a two year preclinical school in 1918. The State Medical Society Committee was still working on its third goal, a hospital. These developments, plus the persuasive powers of Dean Smith, induced the Legislature in 1920 to appropriate $500,000 for the hospital. Unfortunately, the State Penitentiary was in debt, and the funds subsequently were diverted to the Penitentiary.

The City of Little Rock again came to the rescue with the completion of the new City Hospital at McArthur Park, making these facilities available to the Medical School, and clinical instruction was resumed. In 1935 the modern Medical School building was constructed with W.P.A. funds, adjacent to the hospital, and in 1939 the State leased the City Hospital to complete the first combined unit for the Medical Center as such until 1956.

University Hospital and Medical School

An aerial photograph of the University of Arkansas Medical Center. The image shows several large, modern, multi-story buildings with flat roofs and numerous windows. The buildings are arranged in a complex layout. In the foreground, there is a large, open area with some trees and a parking lot with several cars. The background shows more trees and some residential or commercial buildings. The overall scene is a mix of urban and natural elements.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS MEDICAL CENTER

It is difficult to pinpoint any single development which gave rise to the University of Arkansas Medical Center; rather, a series of events and personalities brought it into being.

Dr. H. Clay Chenault, a 1927 alumnus of the Arkansas School of Medicine, assumed direction of the School in September, 1946, as University Vice-President for Medical Education and Hospitals. By that time the "MacArthur Park facilities" already were becoming over-extended and plans had been discussed to add an additional wing to the existing facilities. This, however, did not prove feasible and instead it was recommended that it be moved to another site altogether. In the western part of the city the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases had a large amount of property that was going unused. It was to this area that Dr. Chenault looked. Moreover, Dr. George Jackson, State Hospital Superintendent, suggested that the University consider the State Hospital acreage. And late in 1947 the resolution was passed to transfer the State Hospital property for construction of a Medical Center. The climactic moment of the planning stage came in 1949 when newly elected Governor Sid McMath, in his inaugural message that year, urged construction of the Medical Center. From his recommendation came Act 492 of 1949, which authorized construction and started a building fund. Two years later, the 1951 legislature voted a two-cents-a-package increase in the state cigarette tax to support the overall project. Then construction on the two "basic" components, the 450-bed-capacity hospital and the education wing, was started in 1951 and completed in 1957. After the equipping and the staffing of the new facility - which alone required almost a year - the hospital was opened in June, 1956; the education building in March, 1957. The official dedication was observed April 25, 1957. The overall cost - including facilities which have been added since 1957 - totals approximately $20,000,000.

Although medical education is, by definition, the primary reason for the Medical Center's existence, service to the individual patient as well as to the community is inherent. An average of approximately 1,000 patients a month - including newborn infants - receive treatment at University Hospital, while another 65,000 to 70,000 are treated yearly in the outpatient clinic. Still another 12,000 during the year are given emergency service.

Today's entering classes in the School of Medicine total 105, well above the beginning classes of even a decade ago, and also higher than the median for size of freshman classes in other medical schools in the nation. Since the Medical Center opened, the School has graduated an average of 78 doctors a year. There will be 87 graduates in the class of 1967. The incoming freshman class this Fall will have a new dimension with out-of-state students being accepted for the first time in the history of the school. The full-time faculty of the School of Medicine numbers approximately 120, including some of the top scientists and educators in the fields of medicine. The full-time faculty is augmented by the professional staff of the Veterans Hospital, which has been an integral part of the school. The clinical (voluntary) faculty, which in the early days of the school carried out the major portion of the teaching program, continues to make significant contributions. There is likewise a 350 member Nursing Service Staff geared to the highest nursing standards as an example for nursing students who serve in all areas.

The Medical Center is, then, an academic community lying within the larger academic province of the University. Charged with the responsibility of education, service and research in the health sciences, this community's strength is measured in the 2,300 persons who study, teach, and work here during the year. Of these, 1700 are employees with a $6,000,000 annual payroll.

Administration Building State Hospital.

ARKANSAS STATE HOSPITAL

The Arkansas State Hospital was established by a legislative act of 1873 as the "Arkansas Lunatic Asylum." The old buildings are gone now, replaced by the new, modern Orval Eugene Faubus Intensive Treatment and Administration Center opened in 1965.

The maximum patient load of the hospital is 800 patients, with an active follow-up program of 200 out-patients. The hospital operates on an open-door, open-ward policy which, along with the chemotherapy now being used, has reduced the average stay of a patient from 6 months to 6 weeks.

This institution has an active residency program—presently with 13 residents—in conjunction with the psychiatric program at the UAMC.

Senior medical students and nursing students serve psychiatric clerkships at the State Hospital. In addition, students are hired at the Little Rock and Benton units as externs to take emergency call and do routine history and physical's. Interns and Residents form the Medical Center staff the medical and surgical divisions of the State Hospital, both in regular clinics and in the 100 bed Infirmary.

LITTLE ROCK VA HOSPITAL

LITTLE ROCK VETERANS ADMINISTRATION HOSPITAL

The Little Rock VA Hospital was built in 1950 as a general medical and surgical hospital. It is the chief hospital affiliated with the Univ. of Ark. School of Medicine. It has a total bed capacity of 471, a total personnel of 814; there are 5512 admissions per year and 32,000 patients are followed each year on an out-patient basis. In addition to its outstanding teaching facilities, it is one of the leading research centers of the South, being the head-quarters for the Southern Research Support Center.

Medical students from the UAMC do medicine and surgery clerkships at the VA Hospital during their junior and senior years. The hospital has an approved affiliation for residency training in anesthesiology, dermatology, general surgery, internal medicine, neurology, ophthalmology, orthopedic surgery, pathology, psychiatry, and radiology, all in affiliation with the University of Arkansas School of Medicine. In addition, accredited training programs are conducted for clinical psychologists, social workers, medical technologists, and nurses.

Ping-pong and billiard facilities in the Student Union provide entertainment for both participants and coffee shop idlers.

Students socialize until 11 pm in the coffee shop of the Student Union — food is incidental.

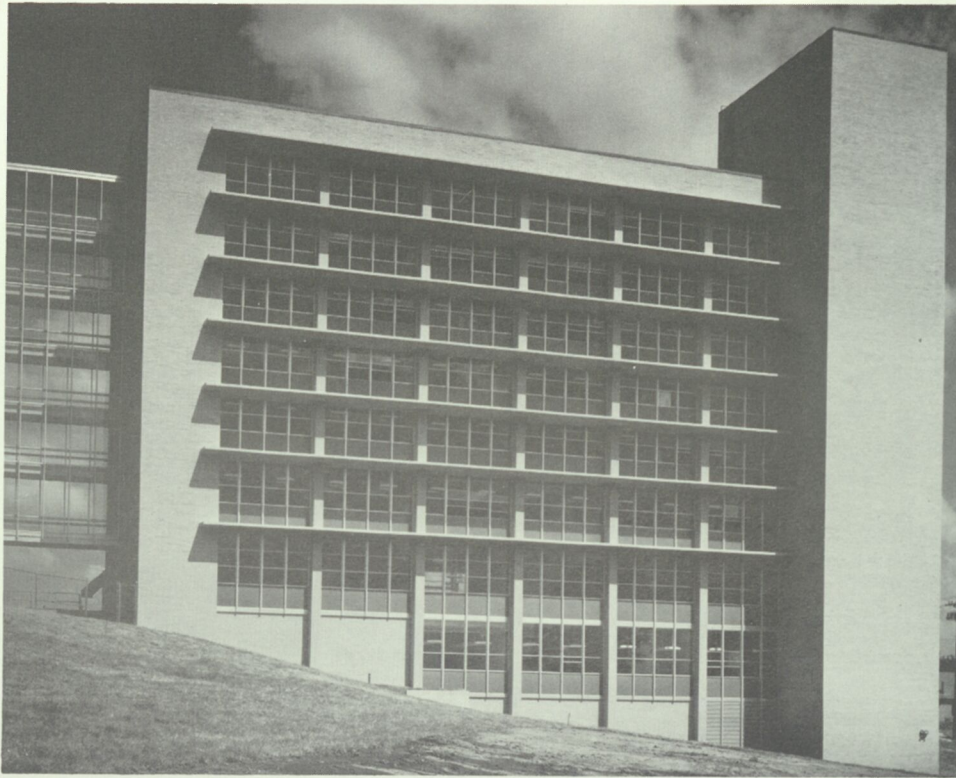

Students can enjoy an afternoon of tennis on the three courts adjacent to the Student Union. A patio overlooking the courts gives balcony seats to sideline enthusiasts.

JEFF BANKS HALL AND STUDENT UNION

In 1959, under a Federally financed bond issue to be repaid by rentals and other fees, a ten story student dormitory and student union building was added to the newly constructed physical plant of the Medical Center.

For the first time in the history of the Medical Center housing in the form of single rooms and apartments within the hospital complex was provided for both single and married students.

The three story Student Union has a lounge, game and music room, conference room, barber shop, coffee shop, and offices for the staffs of the Caduceus and Medico and the Dean of Students.

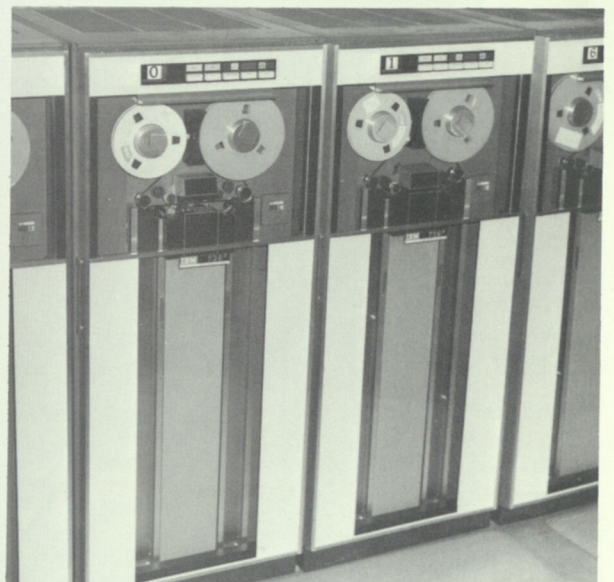

THE T.H. BARTON INSTITUTE FOR MEDICAL RESEARCH

In 1960 construction was completed on a new nine floor research building named for the late Col. T.H. Barton of El Dorado. The T.H. Barton Institute for Medical Research was built from the combination of private grants and government funds with a $600,000 donation from Col. and Mrs. Barton providing the crucial financing impetus for the project.

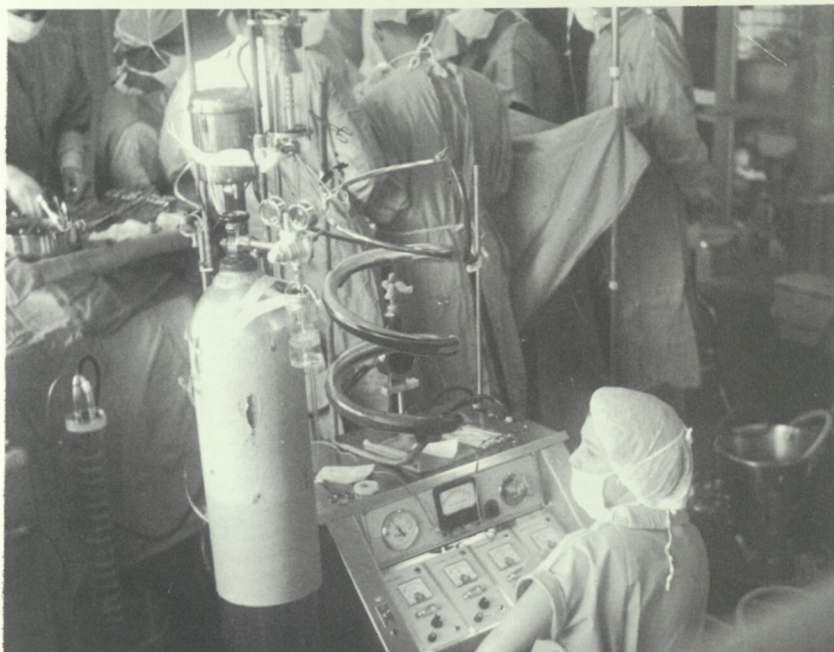

SURVIVORS OF KIDNEY TRANSPLANTATION

In 1964 the Medical Center introduced to the state a treatment and research program involving the kidney transplant. Since its inception at that time, the kidney transplant program has continued not only to contribute vital information to some fourteen other medical centers with similar programs, but has succeeded in returning nine patients to near-normal lives.

IBM

To better coordinate the research program, the Medical Center received in the past a Federal grant to establish a research computation center. This provides for quicker analysis of scientific data, and makes possible some research which would be too complicated to attempt under more conventional methods of analysis.

MBD

National recognition came to the Medical Center through two faculty members, Dr. John Peters and Dr. Sam Clements, whose theory of learning disabilities in children led to the publication last summer of a diagnostic guide for physicians by the Public Health Service.

The original article on "Minimal Brain Dysfunction in the School Age Child" was published in 1962. This resulted in a National Project with Dr. Clements as director.

The Medical Center is the only medical school in the U.S. that sponsors teacher training program for learning disabilities.

MI

Some 1,300 expectant mothers, all with special problems, have been cared for through the Maternal and Infant Care Project, administered by the State Health Department and implemented at the UAMC.

The life of a baby was saved through intra-uterine transfusion, a procedure used for the first time in the state to provide blood to an infant in utero.

Some members of the Pediatric Department are very active in research involving the respiratory distress syndrome seen in prematures. Others are studying new methods of feeding the newborn infant.

OPEN HEART SURGERY

The Medical Center was the first institution in the state to offer an open heart surgery program. Since its inception in 1957, more than 150 patients have received surgical attention toward correcting heart malformations, many of whom today are leading normal lives. Indispensable, of course, is the active cardiac catheterization team which aids in the final diagnosis of the defect in many cases before surgery can be performed. In addition, the research which has accomplished the care of these patients has contributed materially to developing new medical and surgical techniques.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

Wallace Smith, President; Geo. Nichoalds, Secretary; Jim Morse, Vice-President; Charles Nolen, Treasurer

The Organization of Associated Students is the student government body common to all schools at the University of Arkansas Medical Center. The Organization of Associated Students Council is made up of representatives from each of the schools, and is charged with the responsibilities of planning, budgeting, and executing the various inter-school activities. Annual events sponsored by The Organization of Associated Students to which students and faculty look forward are the Orientation Banquet and Dance, Children's Christmas Party, New Year's Eve Dance, and the All-School Spring Outing. The Organization of Associated Students also sponsors other events during the year, and oversees the publication of The Caduceus.

DEDICATION

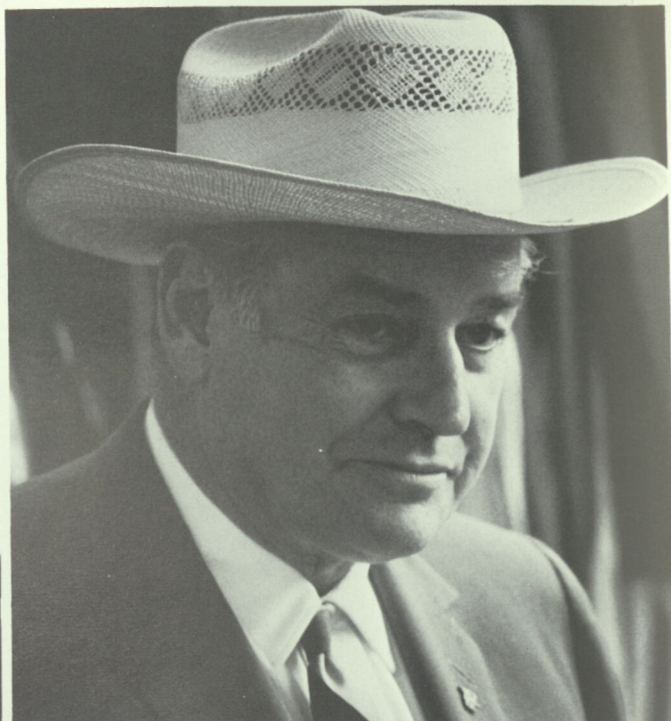

We dedicate the 1967 Caduceus to Dr. George Ackerman. His professional competence and obvious enthusiasm for medicine have been an inspiration to all his students. He is an excellent teacher whose lectures make even difficult subjects understandable. Most important, he has the ability to convey to medical students the deep sense of satisfaction obtained when, after years of study and training, the physician's art is used to relieve the mental and physical suffering of another human being.

The background of the entire page is a solid black field. Overlaid on this are numerous thin, white lines. These lines are mostly straight but vary in orientation, creating a complex, web-like pattern. Some lines are nearly horizontal or vertical, while others are at various angles. The lines intersect frequently, forming a dense network of small, irregular polygons. In the center of the page, there is a large, dark, horizontally-oriented oval shape. This shape is not a solid black oval but a negative space or a region where the lines are less dense, creating a smooth, dark void. The text "Class of 1968" is centered within this dark oval.

The image features a black background with a complex, abstract pattern of thin white lines. These lines intersect to form a series of overlapping, elongated, and somewhat irregular shapes that resemble a stylized, multi-pointed oval or a series of nested, distorted ellipses. The lines are most concentrated in the center, where they form a dense web, and become more sparse towards the edges. The overall effect is one of dynamic, geometric complexity.

The image features a black background with a complex, abstract pattern of thin white lines. These lines are arranged in a way that creates a sense of depth and movement, with some lines appearing to converge towards the center and others radiating outwards. The overall effect is reminiscent of a stylized, abstract representation of a network or a complex system. The word "Organizations" is centered within this pattern.

The Honor Council is composed of representatives or councilmen elected by each class in the School of Medicine. Two representatives and one alternate are elected by each class.

The responsibilities of the Council are those delegated by the Constitution of the Honor System and include: the investigation of charges of violations of the Honor System; conducting a trial, if the investigation reveals that one is justified; reaching a decision; and making recommendations to the Dean of the School of Medicine.

The Council works quite diligently on each violation or charge and ably performs its assigned duties. Each class is to be commended for the fine students it elects for this responsibility-filled honor. The job of the Honor Council is not an easy one, but is one which the members feel is very important if the Honor System is to continue to function. It has been commented many times, and rightfully so, that the Council has to assume its constitutional responsibility only when the student himself fails to assume his moral responsibility.

ALPHA OMEGA ALPHA

William Bridger, Bill Sevier, Dayne Hassel, John Lamb (left to right).

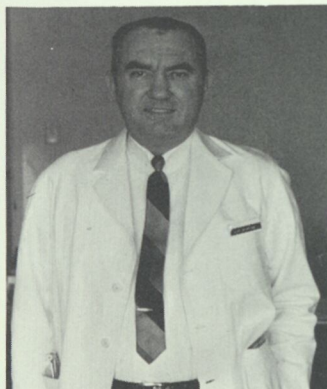

Alpha Omega Alpha Honorary Medical Fraternity was organized at the College of Medicine, Univ. of Illinois, 1902. In 1934 it became the Alpha Omega Alpha Honorary Medical Society.

The society composes three classes of members: 1) undergraduate membership based entirely on scholarship, personal honesty, and potential leadership; 2) Alumni and faculty membership granted for distinctive achievements; 3) Honorary membership for eminent leaders in medicine and allied sciences.

The Student American Medical Association is the national organization of medical students. It is operated by and for the medical student.

The headquarters of the organization is in Flossmoor, Illinois, where there is a salaried executive director, who, along with many assistants, do the vastly time consuming office work of the SAMA. It is there, also, that THE NEW PHYSICIAN, the SAMA journal, is published.

SAMA has seven regional divisions which represent the different geographical areas of the United States. Arkansas is in Region six, and in recent years has become one of the stronger chapters in this Region.

On a national level SAMA has much to offer the member: THE NEW PHYSICIAN (monthly), insurance of all types, Nat'l and Regional Conventions (annually), many types of competitions, and the SAMA-Sears Preceptorships. The local chapter has many activities which greatly augment the activities of the Medical Center in general. There are films offered bi-weekly; frequent tours of the Medical Center; The Golden Apple Award; a spring picnic in association with WA-SAMA. There is an educational committee which is available to speak to college and high school students interested in medicine. The yearly book sale is also a popular event.

This year the chapter has adopted a chapter constitution, and in the Spring will host the Region six Meeting. There has been a proposed merger with the Student Council, but this is still to be decided in the future.

MEDICAL DAMES

Senior Wives

Money-wise the organization was very thriving this year due to the superb projects executed, namely, rummage sales, sponsorship of a district Junior-Miss Contest in the State, sale of surgery and pharmacology notes, and wrapping paper sales. Also a contribution was received from the Women's Auxiliary to the Ark. Medical Society.

Junior Wives

Sophomore Wives

The annual spring banquet was held in May to honor Senior wives and their husbands. To conclude the year the remaining budget was donated to charities. The Medical Dames this year had 141 paid memberships. This large membership, together with their enthusiasm, cooperation and interest, made possible the successful year.

Freshmen Wives

The Medical Dames, officially known as the Univ. of Ark. Chapter of the Women's Auxiliary to the SAMA, had a very active year. The year was begun by sending a "welcome packet" to new wives and by giving an ice-cream social and dinner for them and their husbands. Excellent programs which were given included a report on Good Ship Hope tour and panel discussions on problems confronting wives of doctors, birth control, and human relations.

The chapter served as host to the April Regional VI Convention of the WA-SAMA for the seven affiliated chapters in this regional area who attended the meeting in Little Rock. Throughout the week of April 24-29, New Physician's Day was observed with a coffee hour for the faculty and students and concluded with a SAMA picnic and the school annual skit dance.

Living dangerously!!...

No one went to class after a big party. Dr. Quittner lectured anyway, never noticing that no one was there.

Cliff went to Urinalysis the day after a big party. He should have stayed at home.

Some people just can't stop working. The man seems to be analyzing his dinner. Maybe he found something swimming in his coffee.

Senior student teaches junior student vampire technique.

It must be test tiime. Why else would people waste a coffee break looking over notes?

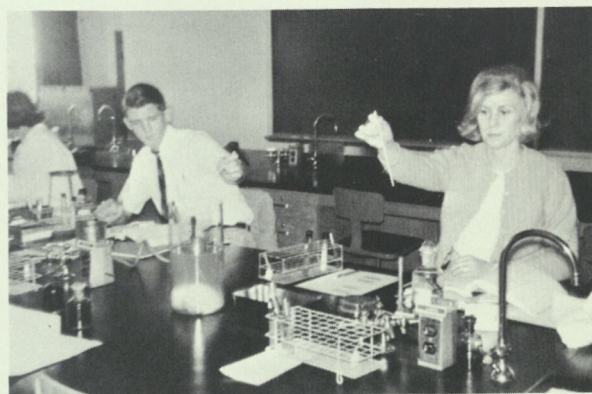

Some people say that the students were the cause of this . . . Maybe so. It must be frustrating to hear, "Is there a difference between an eosinophil and a basophil?"

Chemistry apprenticeship was difficult and every laugh was a welcome relief.

Clinical Pathology is so early in the morning that a smile is a rare thing.

Many hours were spent in microbiology lab acquiring techniques to be used in later work.

The background of the entire page is a solid black field. Overlaid on this field is a complex, dense network of thin, white, straight lines. These lines intersect at various angles and points, creating a web-like pattern. In the center of the page, the text "Senior Class" is printed in a white, serif font. The lines appear to be drawn with a fine pen or a digital tool, and their varying lengths and orientations create a sense of dynamic movement and depth. The overall effect is one of a sophisticated, modern, and somewhat chaotic geometric composition.

I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of this assembly to pass my life in purity and to practice my profession faithfully. I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous and will not take or knowingly administer any harmful drug. I will do all in my power to maintain and elevate the standards of my profession and will hold in confidence all personal matter committed to my keeping and all family affairs coming to my knowledge in the practice of my calling. With loyalty will I endeavor to aid the physician in his work, and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care.

The background of the entire page is a complex, abstract geometric pattern. It consists of numerous thin, white lines of varying lengths and orientations that intersect to form a dense, web-like structure. The lines are most concentrated on the right side of the page, where they form a dense, almost solid-looking area of white lines. On the left side, the lines are more sparse and spread out. In the center, there is a large, irregular, dark shape that resembles a stylized letter 'C' or a large, open parenthesis. This shape is formed by the negative space between the white lines. The overall effect is one of dynamic movement and geometric complexity.

The Rho Chi Society had its origin in the merger of two movements, both commencing in 1917, to create a national honor society for pharmacy. The Univ. of Arkansas received its charter in 1955; it is recognized as the Beta Iota Chapter of Rho Chi.

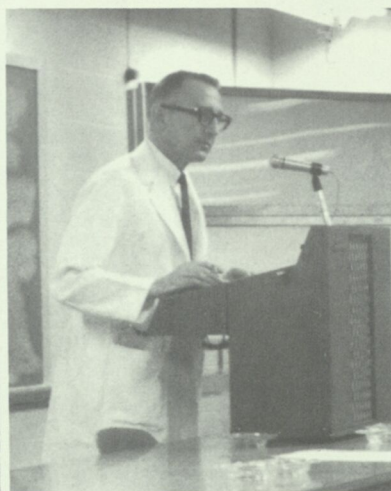

High standards of intellectual and scholarly attainments have been demanded for election to membership, and such election symbolized by the award of a Rho Chi Key.

New members are tapped in the spring and initiated at the annual banquet.

An abstract geometric design featuring a series of black lines and rectangles of varying lengths and positions. The lines are mostly vertical and horizontal, creating a grid-like structure. Some lines are solid, while others are composed of multiple overlapping segments. The rectangles are also of different sizes and are positioned in a way that they appear to be part of the overall geometric composition. The design is minimalist and modern, with a focus on clean lines and geometric shapes.

Graduate School enrollment at the University of Arkansas Medical Center is currently increasing at a rapid rate. The branches of the basic medical sciences which are primarily responsible for this development are anatomy, biochemistry, microbiology, physiology, pharmacy, pharmacology, and radiology. As the facilities are expanded to meet the demands of modern research, the staffs of the basic science departments are increased and the graduate program finds its roots and begins to grow. This growth is cyclic in nature. With increased research comes increased demand for a good and stable graduate program. With a developing graduate program comes improved and expanded research facilities. This improved graduate program, then, is another important part of the overall growth and development of the University of Arkansas Medical Center today.

Dr. Wadkins and Dr. Winter should take note of how hard James Self and Bill Dudding are working.

The facilities which today's UAMC graduate student has from which to choose are excellent. Each student usually occupies his own office with ample laboratory space adjacent to it. Instrumentation available includes the electron microscope, amino acid analyzer, peptide analyzer, analytical and preparative ultracentrifuge, radioactivity counter, and a wide variety of equally useful and important smaller equipment. The following pages give an indication of what one might see if he were to tour the graduate facilities.

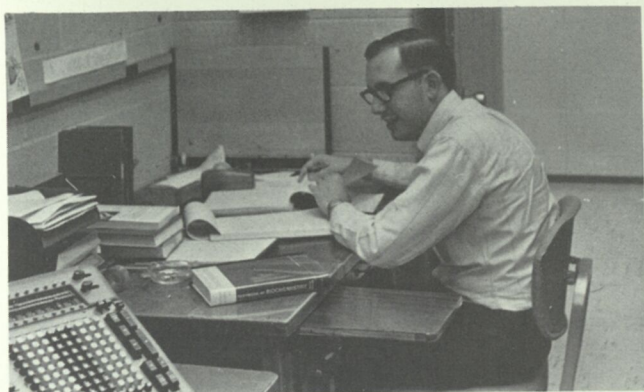

Ben Danzo is demonstrating the instrument to John Farmer or did he just see "something" pass by?

My answers were better than this key's.

George, and Judy Dacus, are engrossed.

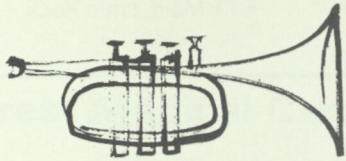

The background of the entire page is a complex, abstract geometric pattern. It consists of numerous thin, white, straight lines of varying lengths and orientations that intersect to form a dense, web-like structure. The lines are set against a solid black background. In the center of the page, there is a dark, horizontally-oriented oval shape. The word "Advertisements" is printed in white, serif font within this oval.

THE INTERNSHIP

Saint Francis Hospital offers an approved preceptor type rotating internship for twelve interns.

In-patient teaching is given the highest priority in the program. Out-patient and emergency room exposure and participation are an integral part of the training.

The intern is also afforded the opportunity to go to the private offices of his preceptor and to work closely with him in an effort to gain a more comprehensive experience of medical practice.

Interesting and instructive cases in office practice are available.

The intern year is divided thus:

MEDICINE	4 m'ths
	(1 month elective in a medical sub-specialty)
SURGERY	3 m'ths
OBSTETRICS-GYNECOLOGY	2 m'ths
PEDIATRICS	2 m'ths
ELECTIVE	1 m'th

THE ORIENTATION BANQUET was begun with Wally Smith, President of OAS as toastmaster.

Good food and entertainment by the Rackensack folk singers and stand-up comedian, Dr. G. Campbell made the day worthwhile for students and faculty alike.

Many fine parties and dances were sponsored by the Associated Students this year. In view of the lack of interest in these events in the past, more publicity was used this year to inform the students of each dance.

Good bands and the additional attractions of go-go girls and free refreshments were all incentives to increased attendance, and were equalled only by free admission.

All this was attempted mainly to help Freshmen students become acquainted with upperclassmen and to enable all students to meet instructors and Deans socially.

CHRISTMAS

The annual Christmas party for underprivileged children sponsored by the Associated Students was such a popular event this year that sponsors for eighty children appeared, bringing gifts, and far outnumbering the fifty-five children invited by the Salvation Army.

Jim Allen, somewhat out of character, played Santa Claus, handing out several presents to each child.

The Knights of Scimitar Clowns added to the festivities with balloons and cotton candy; the latter they prepared on the spot much to the delight of the children.

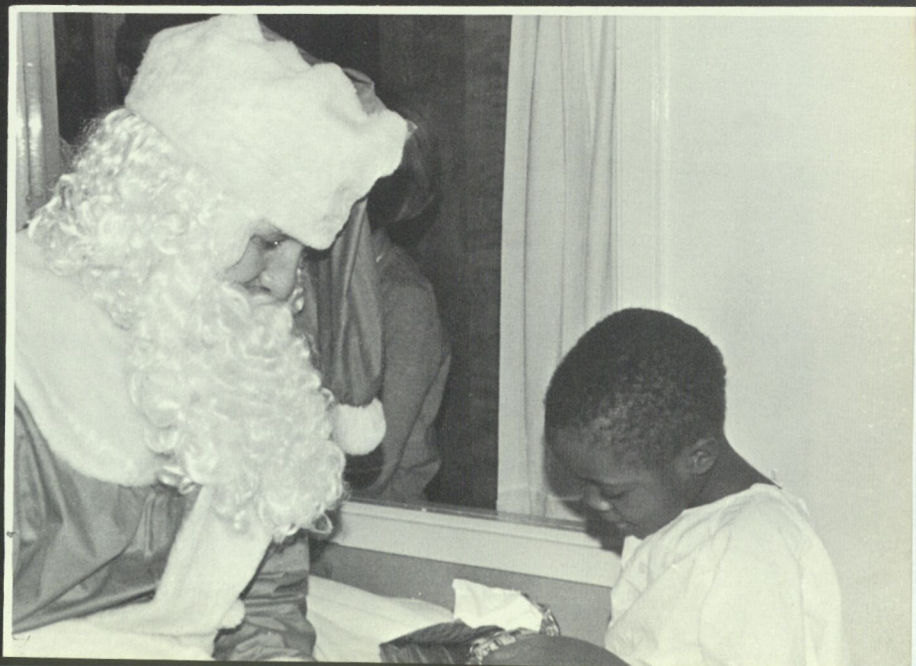

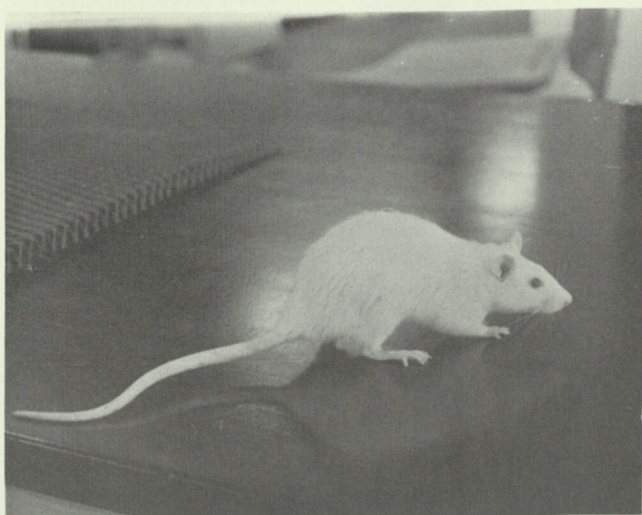

PARTY

After Mary Lou Mills and Tom Beasley sang some popular Christmas songs, the whole group had refreshments and joined together to sing Christmas carols.

Later Santa visited the Pediatric ward to distribute gifts to the young patients who would spend Christmas in the hospital.

The childrens' faces always light up at these parties, but there's no doubt who has the best time.

Dr. Seager makes his rounds of the lab.

Dr. Seager is caught in the act of making his rounds of the lab.

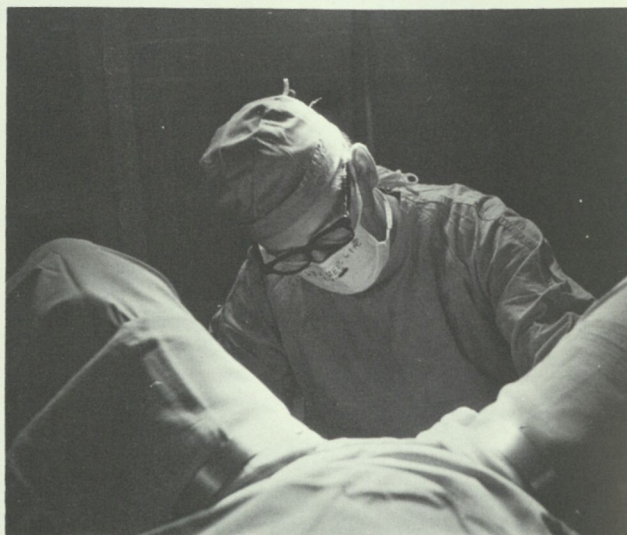

Familiar scene . . . but would you believe it's his wife this time.

You know, I use to go with this pervert, who had this thing about her ear . . .

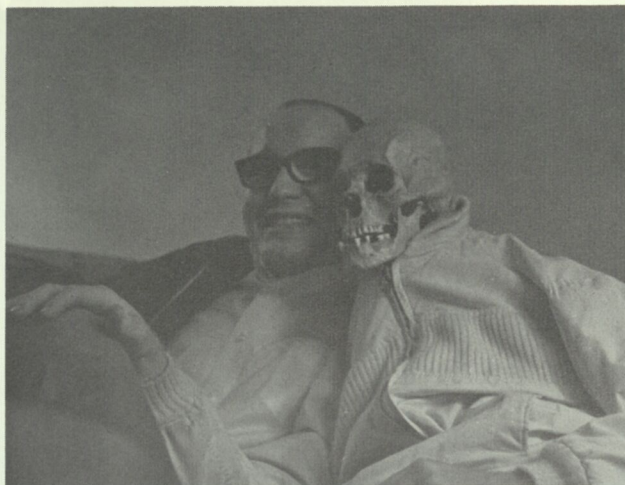

"What's it all about - Alfie?"

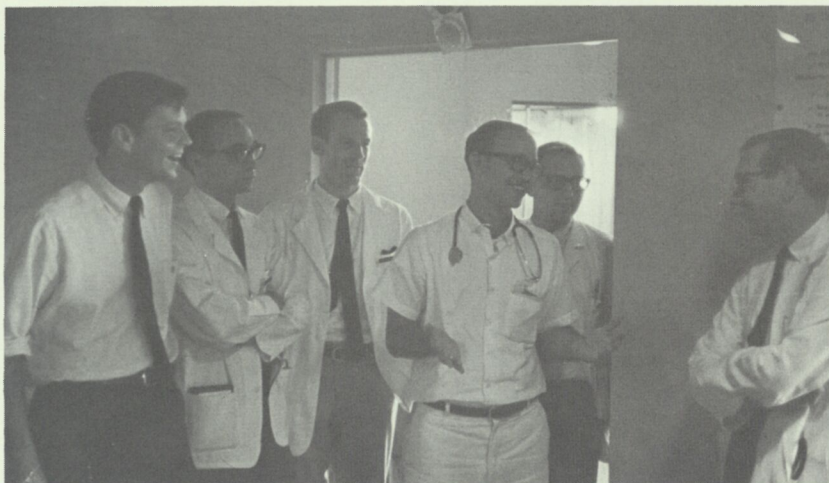

"The little old seamstress."

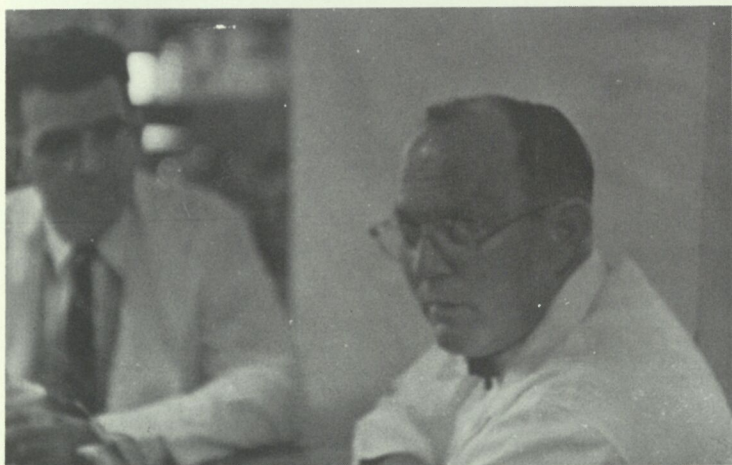

"See, it just fits!"

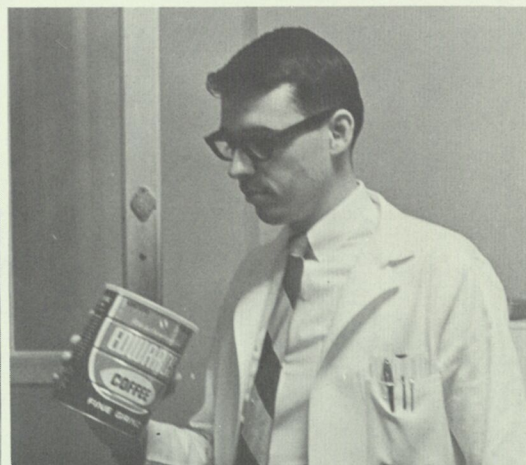

George always did like his girls a little on the lean side.

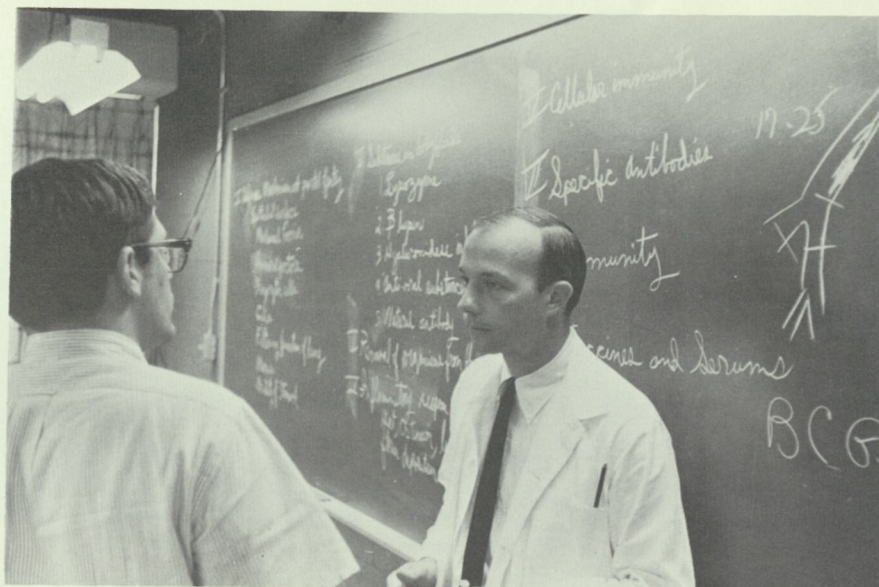

". and you'll never believe the size of that blackjack she passed."

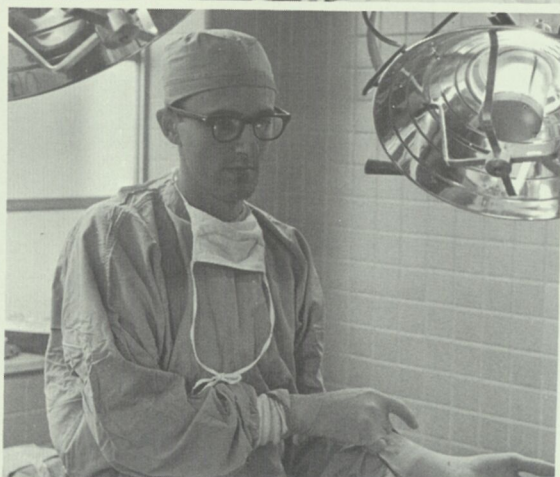

"Kiss-off."

Perdue continues his never-ending search for truth and wisdom. even in strange places.

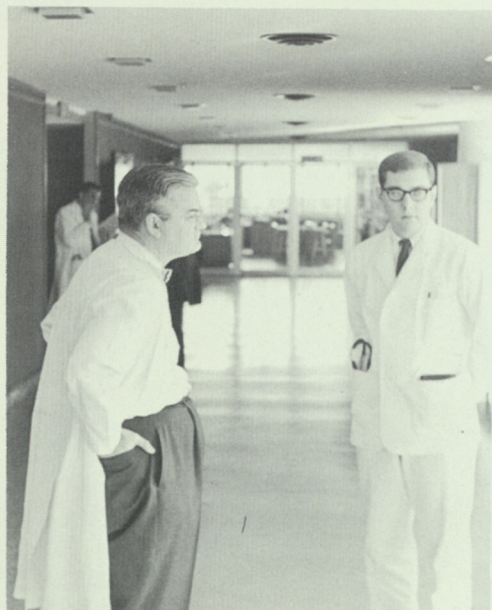

MASTER —

He lost 75 pounds . . .

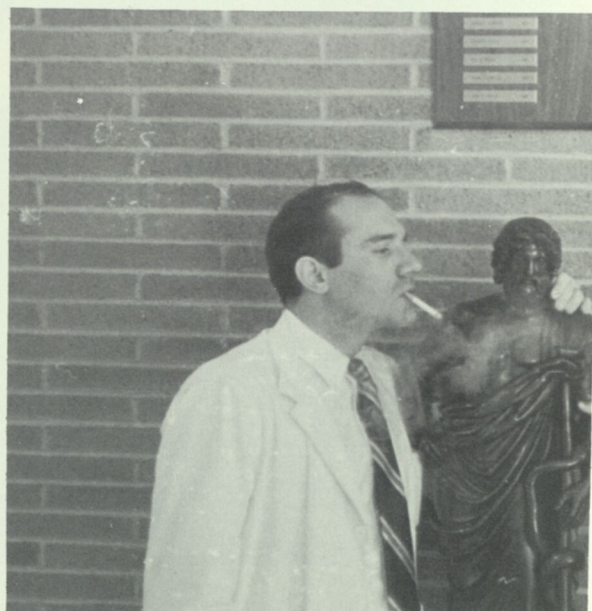

. . . He found it!

Before . . .

and . . .

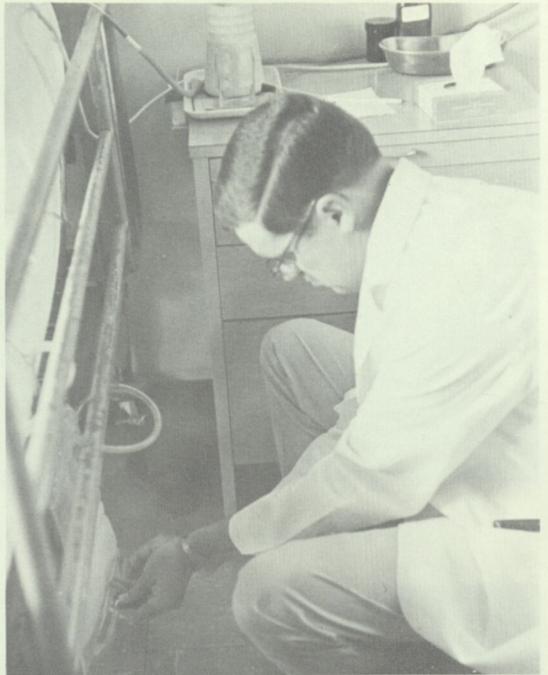

After?

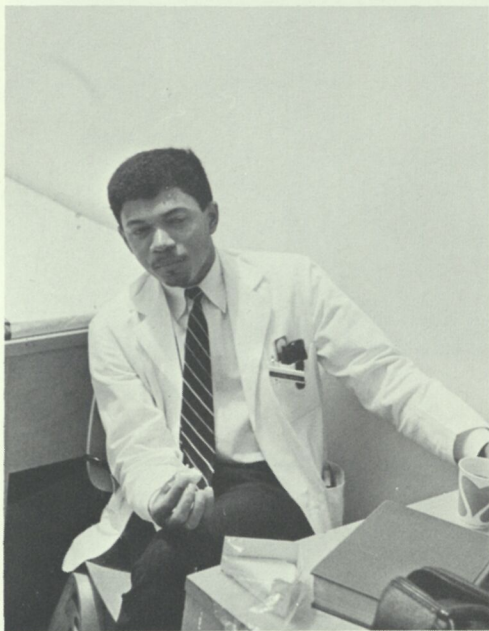

Like father . . . like son!!

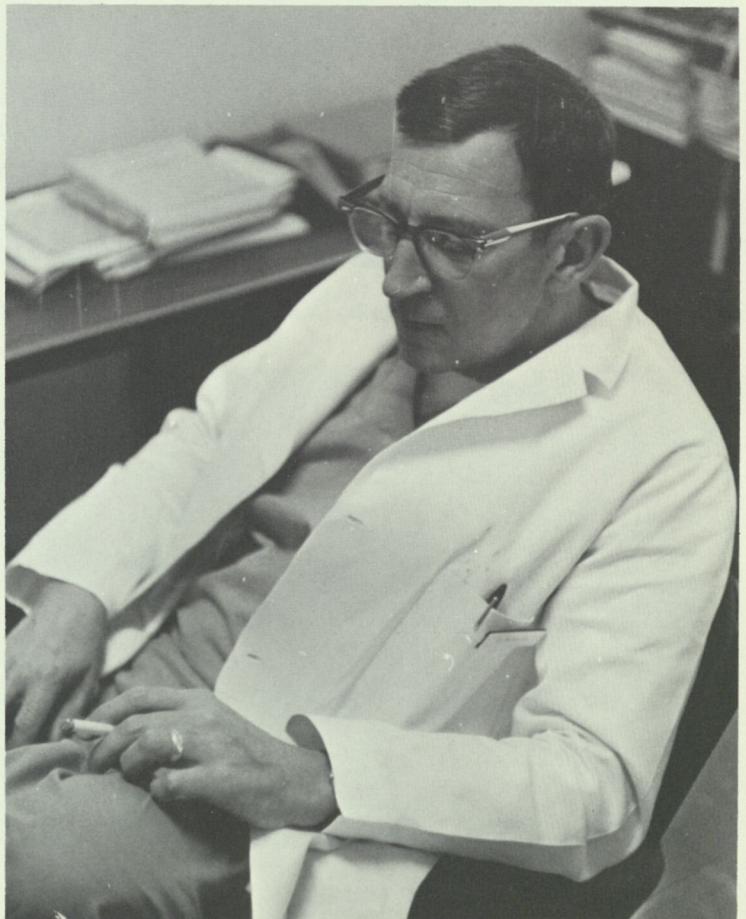

Noon-day rush in school cafeteria after minimum wage law gave "skilled labor" in cafeteria a raise out of the students' pocketbooks.

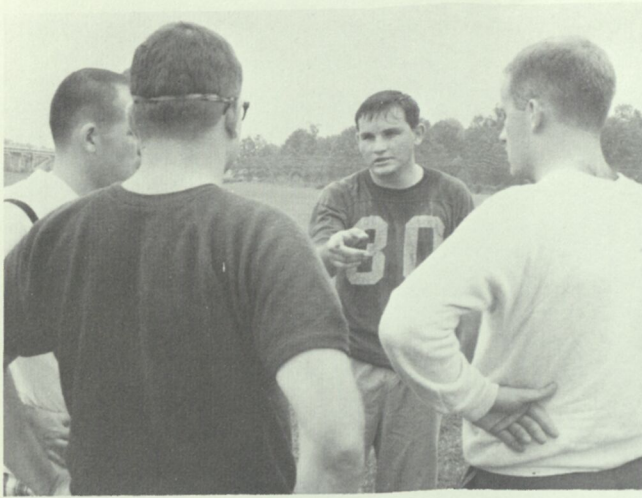

Recent cafeteria price increases have forced some of our underpaid housestaff to resort to drastic measures!

"Keep the faith, Baby"

Dr. Greiffenstein has the situation well in hand.

And if you don't catch it I'll.....!

And they all bowed their heads in shame.

Just call me rabbit!

Urology Consultation.

Today just isn't my day.

There's a first time for everything.

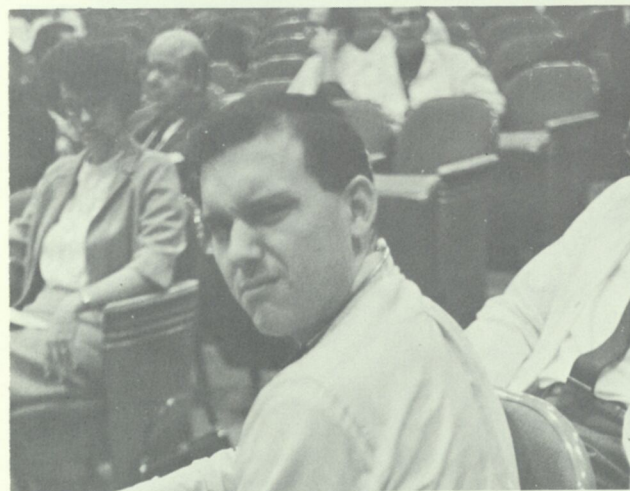

I've heard that one before - but I still like it.

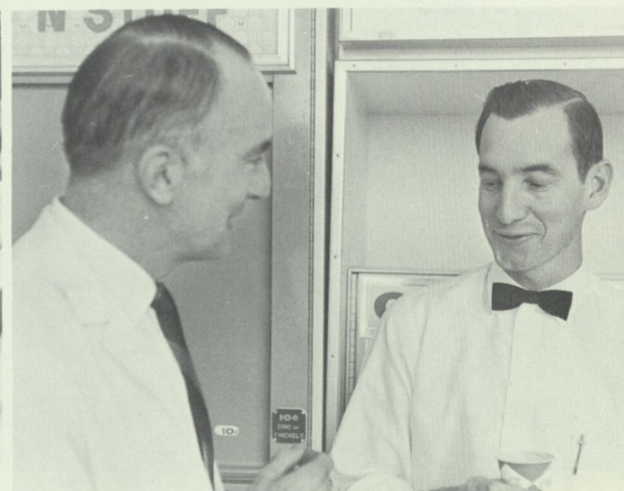

Being a Senior is really tough.

Don't look now but there are three guys behind you who can afford to eat here.

What do you mean? He knows more than I? NEVER!!

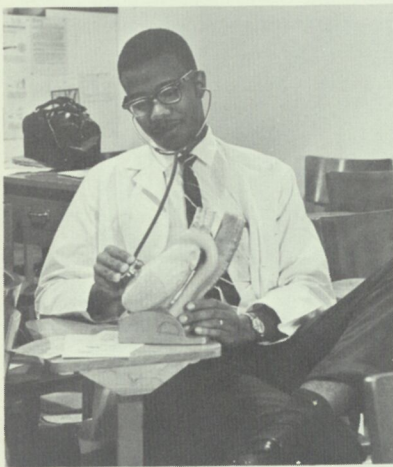

That's funny, I can't afford to eat in the cafeteria either.

What dance?

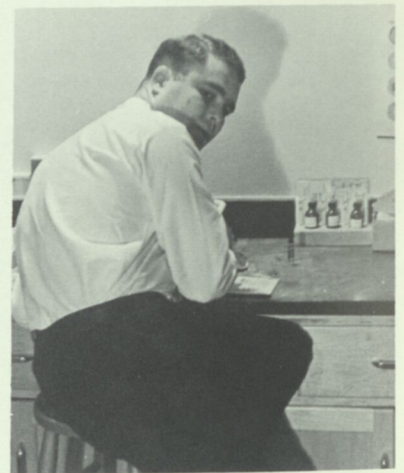

Let's get out of here before Bates and Satterfield steal the show.

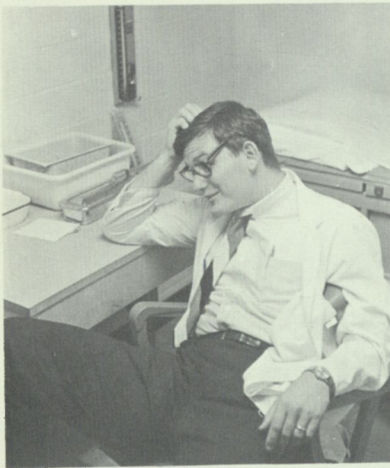

One of the first by-products of Operation Headstart.

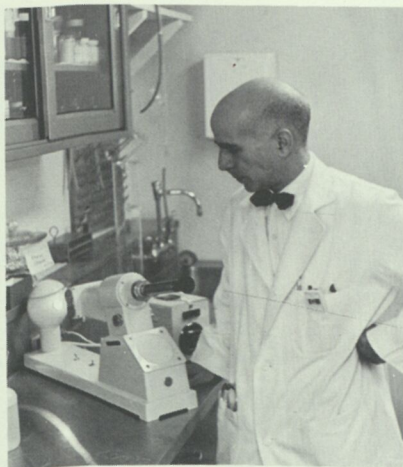

I just drink socially-honest!

Yeah, I'm a Derm Resident strictly legit. You ain't got nothing on me.

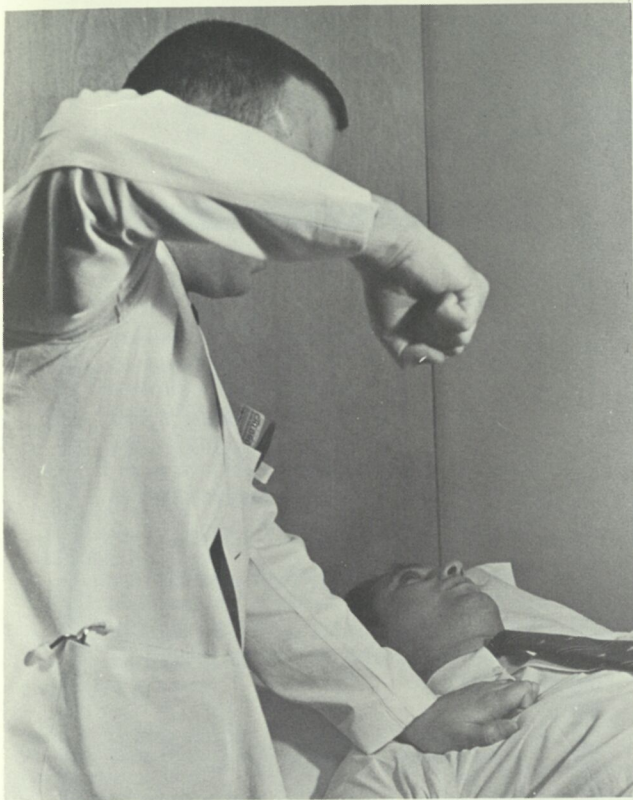

There hasn't been a monkey in my family in three generations.

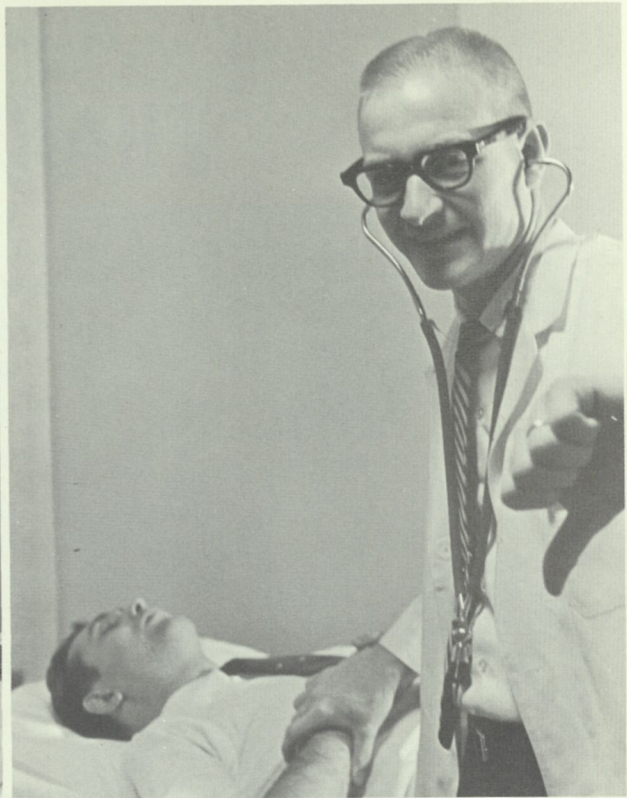

Get away from there Tobin, you know you don't know anything about machinery.

External Cardiac Massage....

.....That failed.

Blood pressure 260/120. Pulse 160.....Etc.

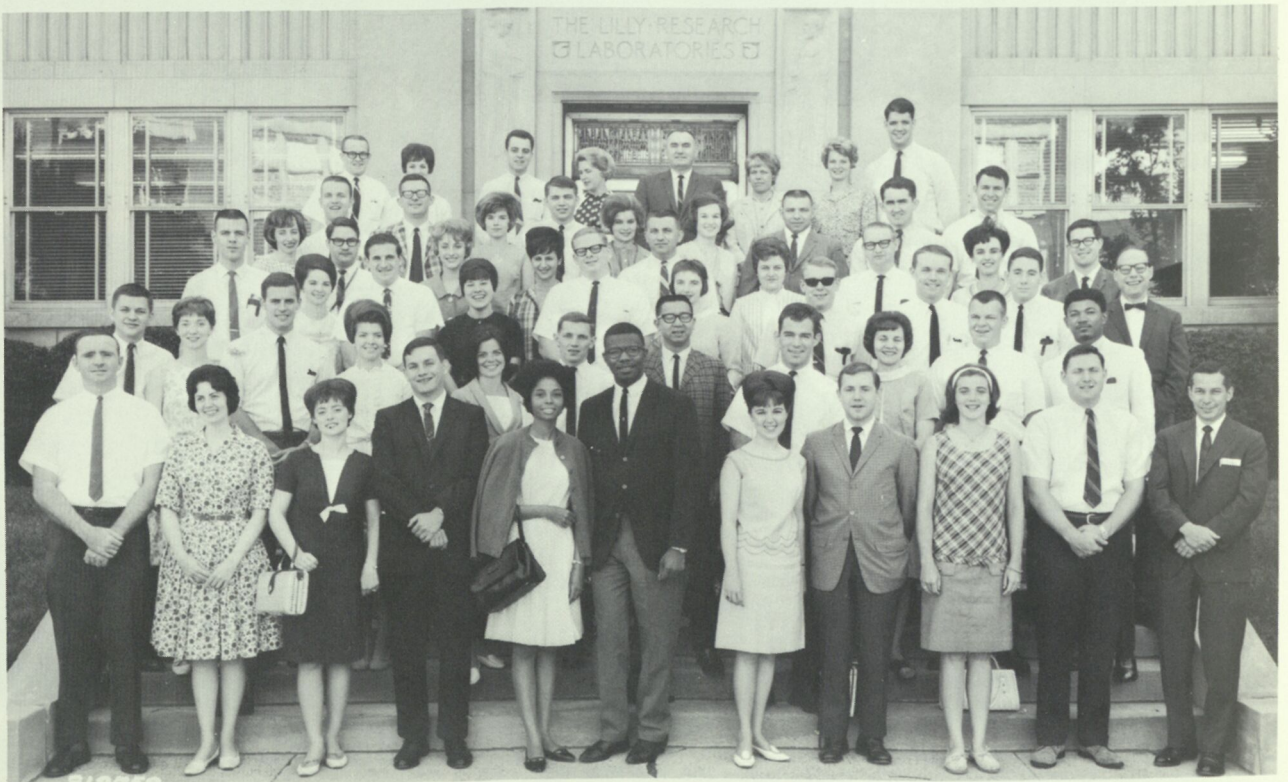

THANKS TO

Mrs. Dicuss well represents all the nurses in the outpatient clinics who strive to make things go smoothly for the student by covering up for their mistakes and tolerating bungling first attempts by the student at procedures they've done proficiently for years. Yet they always seem to maintain their pleasantness.

Much gratitude to Medical Illustrations for the use of their facilities for developing and printing most of the pictures in this yearbook - and for making the others themselves.

Thanks also to Eli Lilly Co. for the all-expense paid Senior trip to Chicago.

TRANSITION

Installation of air-conditioning for the entire hospital.

A view inside the new outpatient clinic for private patients.

Construction of the new Outpatient pharmacy.

Utilizing Federal Funds, a construction program is in progress to relieve the strain that is now upon the existing facilities in different areas of the hospital, and to meet the increasing demands for graduate and undergraduate programs. Since the School of Medicine must increase its enrollment in September to 110 students in the freshman class in order to qualify for federal funds and to increase the number of prospective physicians for the state, the needs are multiplied. Additional students will require retainment, recruitment, and expansion of the faculty and facilities, such as classrooms and laboratories.

The School of Nursing is expected to triple its enrollment in five years. The School also plans to propose a continuing education program for Arkansas nurses within a year.

The University has been directed to establish a School of Social Work at the Master's degree level. This, too, will be an added impetus to more construction. A new Child Guidance Center scheduled to be completed in 1968 on the Medical Center grounds exemplifies the cooperation between the Medical Center and the State Hospital, which added funds to the original appropriation to provide a small inpatient section to treat emotionally disturbed teenagers.

Also envisioned in the near future are new medical school programs in community medicine and public health, a medical rehabilitation program, a dental hygienists school and fulltime chairman of neurosurgery, urology and otolaryngology divisions.

Construction now centers mainly around the new air-conditioning units for the entire hospital, an expanded outpatient pharmacy, and a new private patient outpatient clinic. The future is bright with many outstanding projects now in the early planning stages. One of the best examples of this would be The School of Medicine, with more than $2,000,000 in grants this year, expects to double its research facilities during the coming ten years by adding a wing to the T.H. Barton Institute for Medical Research.

It will be interesting and exciting to watch this transition.
